

Ana São Marcos

A job well done is what everyone who has worked with ana is used to.

Maybe being responsible is not considered to be such an attractive quality these days, but when results constantly excel expectations, responsibility turns out to be quite something.

Ana has a background education which matches her analytic mind - Applied Math and Computation. While at college some waited to go abroad for Erasmus, Ana waited to complete her education and go abroad to work. Fluent in English and French, she finished college and explored the international public sector.

First, at a European Union internship at Eurostat in Luxembourg which resulted in a future invitation to come back as a collaborator. And after, in Paris, as a data manager in the OCDE International Energy Agency. But it was the private sector that made her want to learn more about Management. Ana is proud to be an IT Planning Manager at Sonae where she has evolved in her career. She is recognized by her talent to accomplish and deliver, but also motivate her team. Whenever she is not busy being responsible, Ana likes to take planning home and structure her next family journey vacation. Detail oriented, it is no wonder that she also runs her own cooking and recipes blog. The good thing about responsibility is that it is transversal.
