

Jorge Pereira

A Portuguese problem solver.

With a degree in Civil Engineering, Jorge soon grasped the challenges of his profession early on. His dedication led him to work in a demanding market such as Angola, where he had a unique work experience. But having started to build a family made him wish to return to Portugal, to work in a construction company, pursue his studies and fulfil his will to grow. Jorge nurtures the sense of humility as a work personality trait and feels that his ability to adapt and solve problems, as a typical Portuguese, is one of his strengths. He loves to travel but feels that Portugal could be more explored and valued, a wish he intends to fulfil for now. Jorge's dream is to be able to combine his career success with his family happiness, a balance hard to achieve. But when you are a natural born problem solver, there is no challenge you won't turn into an opportunity.
