

Marco Oliveira

The engineer of resilience.

Marco has been a mechanical engineer for the automobile company JAP Group, for 15 years now. One of the most important events of his life, surpassed, of course, only by the birth of his daughter. He always loved cars, so we can say that the combination of the undeniable technical skills and his passion, contributes a lot for his successful career as a post-sale responsible in the automobile retail. But do not think that he lowered his arms: every day he works for new professional goal, so that one day he can make a difference. To keep going and as a motor lover, he needs adrenaline to move things forward and make things happen, so he never leaves the side of his teammates. To manage the stress of his daily routine, Marco always keeps the speed until the end of the day, one tight curve after the other.
